

The deadliest of errors is denying that one has erred. Errata Pak J Surg Med Volume 1 Issue 1.

Errata

Ammar Anwer.

Chief Editor, Pakistan Journal of Surgery and Medicine (Pak J Surg Med).

It is human to err; and the only final and deadly error, among all our errors, is denying that we have ever erred.[1]

Due to an error, the generated digital object identifiers (doi) for the following articles of Pakistan Journal of Surgery and Medicine (Pak J Surg Med) Volume 1 Issue 1 had to be regenerated[Table 1].

This happened because we didn't have an open journal system (OJS) at that time which has been corrected. The said OJS is now fully functional.[2] Pak J Surg Med believes in upholding the highest levels of medical journalism, adhering strictly to International Committee of Journal Medical Editors (ICJME) guidelines & World Medical Association Declaration of Helsinki.[3, 4]
